

COMPUTER SITES

The following are some of the thousands of electronic sites available that contain information fathers may find beneficial:

<http://www.ctw.org/parents/advice>

Sesame Street Magazine provides a variety of information and activities. Dads can also type in parenting concerns and areas of interest and receive tips and suggestions.

<http://www.childfun.com>

Provides a wealth of activities dads can do with their children

<http://www.growingchild.com/milestones.html>

Dads can access a variety of information on the stages of development. Developmental checklists are available from birth through six.

<http://www.fatherhood.org/default.asp>

This is the web site for the National Fatherhood Initiative. Information is provided on a wealth of father-related topics and the importance of fathers. Information can be obtained and special fathering populations such as incarcerated fathers, single fathers, etc. Fathers can sign up for e-mails on parenting tips and updates on issues of importance to dads.

<http://www.fatherhood.hhs.gov/involv-non-res00/res-org.htm>

Interested fathers can obtain information on a variety of sites pertaining to fatherhood

<http://www.fathers.com/>

Similar to the National Fatherhood Initiative, this site provides information of interest to fathers.

<http://www.fathermag.com/news/>

A wide variety of fatherhood articles are available for fathers to read

<http://www.pennsylvaniafamilysupportalliance.org/justfordads.htm>

The Just for Dads section has a variety of parenting tips and suggestions. Fathers can also access information on parenting classes and parenting support groups offered in the various counties by local chapters

